To the Christian Dior Hiring Team,

Coming from L'Oréal Luxe, this application isn't just a career move; it is a logical pivot. I am deeply familiar with the challenge of translating global brand DNA into tactical, high-impact retail execution. I understand that Dior is looking for a leader who doesn't just "teach" manuals but masters the Selling Ceremony and Product Knowledge to ensure every boutique team is an authentic ambassador of the Maison's heritage.

My approach to training is pragmatic and results-driven. I specialize in bridging the gap between VM strategy and retail excellence, moving away from static presentations and focusing on high-performance spot coaching on the floor. Whether it is elevating Client Development or ensuring a seamless Employee Induction, my goal is always to move the needle on commercial KPIs through storytelling and service sophistication.

With over 10 years in the luxury and high-impact retail ecosystem—from Aldo to Levi's LATAM—I have learned that training is the final mile of brand consistency. I am not a rigid corporate profile; I am a strategic partner who optimizes the "bandwidth" of retail teams so they grasp the "why" behind ultra-luxury and execute it flawlessly. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my vision for coaching and field enablement can contribute to Dior's continued growth and excellence.

Best regards,

Mauricio Meyrán
